

EDITORIAL

It is with sincere gratitude that we dedicate this volume of Akroterion to Prof. P J Conradie. Not only has Prof. Conradie devoted many decades to advance the cause of Classics in South-Africa, he was also intimately involved with this journal from its beginning, as a regular contributor, as member of its editorial board and finally as its editor for the past ten years. By means of the present offerings the contributors to this volume wish to extend their sincere thanks to Prof. Conradie for his own contribution to the Classics, and wish him a pleasant and productive retirement.

Regulars readers of Akroterion will note some changes in the layout and style. The previous layout was used for a number of years and we felt it was time to dress the journal in a new garb. We have further decided to reduce the number of issues to two instead of four per year, in order to save money on the binding and postage. The number of pages per year will, however, remain the same. Please let us have your comments on these and possible other changes you would like to see.
